-Emily Pfeiffer. USELESS LITTLE EXPENSES.

Keep an Account of What You Spend if You Want to Save Money. Ben Franklin had a wise old head when ne advised his readers to take care of the pennies and the pounds would take care of themselves. The boy in whose pockets the pennies burn holes will understand the dif-

ulty of taking care of the pennies, and like as not declare that it cannot be done. "I don't know," says Rob Heckless, "what becomes of my money. Only yes-terday I changed the dollar that Uncle Tom gave me, and I only bought a glass of soda, and now I have only a dime left. Where can it have gone?"

"My, how money does fly!" exclaimed Edith Random. "What will pape say when he discovers that my month's allowance has only lasted a week? Where did it go? I really can't tell. I remember treating the girls to ices yesterday, and buying a ribbon the day before, and two pairs of loves last Saturday, and oh, dear, don't ok me where it has gone."

But that is just the question every boy and girl should ask themselves when they find their money disappearing.

"It is a good thing to keep an account of your small expenses," John Bigelow, ex-minister to France and a man of wealth, once said to an acquaintance as he entered an item in his note book. being a sensible fellow he took it to heart. In recently telling the story of his experience he said that up to that time he had never thought of the amount it annually cost him for eigars and other sundries. He began to itemize the cost daily. He was amazed at the end of the year when he footed up the sum of $750. A change was wrought in him, and he determined that he would keep such expenses down to onethird of the sum in question.

"And now," he said, "within ten years I have profited by Mr. Bigelow's advice to the amount of $5,000, which I have handed over to my wife to keep for hard times. And I have not become mean either."

A great many little expenses are incurred for such useless objects that the money might as well be thrown into the street and they are the expenses that an expense nook would check.

It is not "mean" to keep an account of little expenses. The United States gov-erament requires all postmasters to collect and sell waste paper and string and render an account of the money realized from the sale; army officers are required to account for every hammer, bit of harness, yard of cloth or gilt button, and the weather bu-reau requires its observers to report the disposition of every postage stamp

So it is in every great mercantile and manufacturing establishment; the little expenses are rigidly looked after because experience has shown that in the aggregate they amount to large sums.

Take care of the pennies by noting where they go and you will be surprised to find how the practice will act as a check on useless expenditure. Keep a guard on the little expenses and you will have no trouble with the big ones.—Golden Days.

Indeed it would certainly seem ominous if the body of the practice will be a check on useless expenditure. Keep a guard on the little expenses and you will have no trouble with the big ones.—Golden Days.

At Atlantic City, as almost everywhere, you see several soap kings. The soap king is peculiar to no country. His name in London may be Pear; in Philadelphia, Bazan or Siddalls or Brooke; in Cincinnati, Procter; in Zanesville, Schultz or Heag; in New York, Babbitt or Higgins, but the soap man sweeps and scrubs the deck. A simple recipe, namely, to get the discarded grease of improvident families and compound it with a little lye and potash, makes all the difference between the soap king and pov erty. The soap king sometimes adds the candle business to his other trade. He deals in wax from the bees, and somewhat in coal oil, as an assistant to the home fat business. But everywhere he compounds advertising with thrift if he would sucoeed, and it must be confessed that nothing suits mankind so much as good soap.

Cleanliness being next to godliness, soap is the priest of that cleanliness. There is a smell about fine soap which hardly any thing in this world has. As people go for ward in the social and civilized scale they do not draw nearer to the angels, but nearer to soap. The bubbles of soap resemble the golden clouds and all the tints of the rainbow. There is a coherence about soap which holds a little drop of water together so that it can expand under the breath until it is as big as your head. Some men love their toilet and get good dividends out of attention to it, in white teeth, white hands, excellent complexions, and often the attention to the toilet in man is assisted by clean appetites.-Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Doctors' Names.

Something might be said in favor of the rimitive practice of naming men after they were grown up instead of while they babies. Under the present system it often happens that a man's name is curiously out of keeping with his character or pursuits. The literary editor of The Doctor has lately been examining a new directory of physicians, and seems to have been greatly impressed by the singularity and inappropriateness of some of the names

He thinks, for example, that Dr. Coffin might sound unpleasantly suggestive to a nervous patient, though less so, perhaps, than another name which follows it—Dr. Death. A timid person might object to Dr. Sexton also, and if one were very sick indeed it would certainly seem ominous if Dr. Death, Dr. Coffin and Dr. Sexton were going are Dr. Butcher and Dr. Slaughter, though they occur several times each in the directory. There are two Dr. Cranks -- fewer than might have been expectedand one Dr. Craze, who is perhaps in charge of an insane asylum.

Some of the names may be called inapropriately appropriate, such as Aiken. Carver, Cutter, Hash, Diet, Hurt, Mangle, Pellett, Pillmore, Tomb and Toothaker. Dr. Ague and Dr. Shivers might very well be partners, and if a third man were wanted they could hardly do better than to call in

Two Fingers, Yet He Makes Music. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch has discovered a young colored man, Benjamin Franklin Dixon, in St. Louis who plays eigh musical instruments at one time and has but two fingers. Around his neck is a Crackle, as he read the weather forecast brass and leather contrivance which holds all of the wind instruments be plays upon, so that by bending his head slightly he can reach them with his mouth. Under one foot is an electric button which connects with the snare drum and electric bells. On his left stands the big bass, which he plays along with the cymbals by means of a cord fastened to his left elbow. On the other side bangs the triangle, which he operates with his right elbow, moving in and out in chicken-wing fashion. On his head he fastens a frame with beils upon it which he shakes at the proper time. While he is going through all these motions with his arms, head and feet he carries the air he is playing on the barp, which is fastened to the same framework as the wind instruments. He is a summer garden orchestra all by himself.

Emperor William's "Uncle."

It is said that the extraordinary deference and regard shown by the German Emperor William to King Christian, who is old, poor, dull, and of no political conse-quence, is due to the fact that ten years ago, at the castle of Rumpenheim, in Hesse, on occasion of some meeting of po-tentates, young William, who had secompanied his grandfather as beir presumptive, and showed himself heir presumptions as well, was severely snubbed by the besembled royalties, with the single exception of "the beauteous majesty of Denmark," who declared that the lad had the making of a great man in him, and treated him with an affectionate politeness and assumption of equality which won the heart of the youngster, who has ever since called his defender "uncle,"—Harper's Bazar.

Being thirty miles the shortest line and 458 miles the best one, people insist on buy-ing tickets to Chicago via. the Santa Fe

This has given our two night trains Kansas City to Chicago, a heavy business. To further accommodate our friends, we have just put on a new through express, carrying day coaches, free chair cars, and Pullman sleepers at night, leaving Kansas City 10 a. m. and arriving in Chicago 7-25 a. m. Passengers on this new train have adaylight ride across Missouri and lowa. Remember one thing, that it makes no difference whether you get into Kansas City morning or evening, you will find a Santa Fe train on the track ready to take you to Chicago or intermediate points in quicker time than any competing line.

Notwithstanding statements to the con-trary, the Frisco line is two hours the quickest to St. Louis. Try it. 50 tf

ST. LOUIS, August 19th, 1890. D. Murdock, Esq., Agent Wichits, Kan. Dear Sir:-I take pleasure in advising Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in advising you that arrangements have now been made that hereafter train No.6 will always have a sleeper between Burrton and St. Louis. Heretofore it has happened quite often that this train has been without a sleeper, which has done injury to our passenger business. It is now fixed so that this train will never be without a sleeper from Wichita to St. Louis. This is for your information. Very respectfully, d 85 20t.
